SPECIAL "THROW BACK" EDITION

The Phelp's School Student Body and Faculty Circa 1948

"The world has changed greatly in the last seventy years and in a number of respects so has The Phelp's School. Students no longer dig potatoes, milk cows, or haul hay on a daily basis. In another sense however nothing has changed here - it's still all about 'dedication to the individual boy.'"

Middle States Accreditation

Last week, as mentioned in the Lion Tale, we hosted a Validation Team from the Commission on Secondary Schools branch of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools. During which time, the Validation Team was on campus validating our self-study documents and meeting with a wide representation of our constituents. We are proud to announce that the team will be recommending The Phelp's School for continued accreditation!

"...This is a school committed to success: little successes and big successes, measured individually for each student, yet counted as wins for the school too..."

Classroom Collaborations 2017

Collaboration and cross-curricular activities are happening at Phelps each day! Mrs. Hemler's reading classes are both experiencing and reading the play "The Diary of Anne Frank", while Ms. Abraham's History class provides the context and background information about WWII. Seen here: Letters from a different perspective than Anne's and a WWII scrapbook reflecting the 'human' side of history.

Congratulations to our JV Tennis team!

JV Tennis opened its season with a win at home on Wednesday versus Perkiomen. With two victories at first (Jason Kuo) and third singles (Nathan Yao), along with two losses at second singles and first doubles, the match would be decided by our second doubles team of Johnson Bian and Rong Li. Although down by two games late in the set, the pair of doubles managed to stretch the match into a tiebreaker. During the tiebreaker, neither team held more than a one-point advantage until Johnson hit a winning forehand past both opponents to take the tiebreaker 7-5. Starting the season at 1-0, the team will play its next match against Delaware Valley Friends School on April 19.

Spring Sports 1950

ANDREW CARNEGIE III, one of the Rosengarten group, is a native of New York City. Andy was born on June 10, 1931. At Phelps Andy is a member of the soccer squad and Gun Club, and, besides this, has a thorough collection of Spike Jones' records. During the fall term Andy was very keen about trapping, and seemed to be quite successful. But one evening a strange odor swept through Rosengarten Hall; everyone was completely baffled about it, except Andy, because that afternoon he had put two fox skins in the cellar. They were removed quickly.

(Great, great nephew of Andrew Carnegie, (1835-1919) the wealthiest and most famous industrialists of his day.)

PHELPS ANNUAL FUND

The Phelps Annual Fund raises money for the daily operation of the school, covering costs that tuition alone cannot meet. We rely on gifts from individuals, foundations, and corporations to help balance our operating budget. We need your help to realize our goal. We hope that as a family or individual connected to Phelps, you will consider giving as generously as you can. Your gift will make a difference to our success. While tuition provides most of the income needed to meet expenses, the Annual Fund provides a tax-deductible way to contribute to the same operating budget.

For additional information on how you can contribute to the continued growth of The Phelps School, please contact the Advancement Office: 610-644-1754 or advancement@thephelpsschool.org.
